Question Everything—The Horror Has a Root-Cause

There is one underlying cause behind US Foreign Policy. The rest are tactics in support for, or consequences of, a strategy. What is that strategy? I'll leave it until the end.

I was telling a family member how monstrous it seems to me that Bobby Jr., who lost his father and his uncle to assassination, and is a democrat, could in any rational/caring world be denied Secret Service protection. Then again Trump goes unprotected.

My family member suggested maybe Bobby didn't have the needed poll numbers to rate protection. Really, the Secret Service, with its massive budget can't spare a few guys to assure that we are not once again treated to a Kennedy—murdered on TV?

Without divulging too much, I know a young girl who without any evil elite influence, would be on a non-binary gender scale. There's only 2 sexes, but even back when I was in high school, out on the quad, there were boys and girls—who didn't fit the norm.

I've known this girl's father since he was a kid. He loves his daughter, but is unaware that in the grand scheme of things there is a likely mission to make young girls unable to bear children. He doesn't know that California now hosts a multitude of clinics where the sounds of cash-registers, ring-up profits from sex change operations on children.

He's unaware that Schwab/Gates, in their quest to reduce human population by 75%, see his child as not but a cipher. He doesn't know that his daughter, without his ever-knowing, could be on hormone blockers right now—from which there is no return.

These are the same parents that also, following what they heard in the mainstream, believed, without curiosity, that millions were dying from a pandemic that proved to be nothing more than a rough flu. These are the parents who took the jabs with their children, to which they had no adverse reaction—unless you count having Covid 5 times.

Being incurious, they don't know that the virus was most likely a product for profit, US funded, and the 'vaccines' bear that same motif. These parents are unaware of new studies, pulling together data from more than 100 countries, showing some 30 million deaths associated with the virus. My take on it: just less than half succumbed to the virus, and slightly more than half met their end with the 'vaccine'. If 16 million humans died from the jabs, that's colossal news—the lead story across every wire. Try to find it.

Many parents, having some skepticism towards government institutions, may not be equipped to attain to a needed level of questioning, to have a chance at saving themselves—or their families. And that might be the future for countless multitudes of us.

For me to not attempt to sound a warning to him, from my vantage makes me not different in kind, from whichever subhuman made a decision to hang Bobby Jr. out to dry.

I know a dad who didn't want his young daughter 'vaccinated', but bowed to the little woman's insistence to jab her. What happens to that dad/couple when Fauci proves to be responsible for the demise of his daughter? Killing children raises the level of horror.

Though not a Christian—I adhere to many stories from the New Testament. As in Matthew, when Jesus says: suffer little children. That story tells us that the kingdom of heaven belongs to those who are as children. Even more-so, if they be actual children.

It's human nature to look out for children. The worst crime to be in prison for is pedophilia. For myself, anybody interfering with a child's natural sexual development by excluding parents (except in rare instances that parents are a direct threat to the child), is perverse. Either from a heinous self-imposed, Malthusian mission of de-population, or, or their own sexual perversion—they have need to re-make our kids in their image.

I'm describing the elite strategy, for which non-binary/trans, virus(es), climate change, are tactics supporting the strategy. Tactics they are—but tactics to what end?

If only the underlying cause were at least tied an ideology, but alas, it's more base, gross than that. Mix together profit and greed—add a dash of power—and you got it.

It's about the dollar—it's all about the dollar. The power comes with the election—but underneath all is the dollar. If the dollar cannot be saved—there is no power to be had.

Unfortunately for the elite, the dollar is on the way out, and the best they can do is to take steps to keep the dollar viable for as long as possible. In that process there are immediate concerns involving non-use of the dollar. Consider Japan, that until recently has $1T in US paper assets. Then they sold a couple hundred billion to where they have 800 billion left. Now they are announcing they intend to sell half of what remains.

Suppose Japan moves on it before the election? That would constitute default by the US Government because Japan would find no buyers (including the US), willing to pay face-value for those dollars. Japan may decide to pay that price to get out of dollars.

Many nations want out of dollars, a process that will be ongoing and calculated so as to recoup most of what was paid for those dollars. But, something more causal is at work here. What actually defends the US dollar is not the good faith and credit of the United States—it's that Mao thing wherein real power comes out of the barrel of a gun.

That brings us to the 800 billion and change, US defense budget, which has to be maintained for the dollar to have any hope. And the only way to preserve that budget is with an active war. The war in Ukraine will soon be over, nullifying the need for a preposterous defense budget. That creates an imperative for new war—sooner than later.

That's all the huff and puff around Taiwan causing a shift of NATO to include the South China Sea, along with Sweden/Finland raising the threat ante along Russia's border. Add to that, a carrier group steaming to the Black Sea as I write, in support of Israeli genocide. Without a debate, elites are taking steps to protect democracy/dollars.

The future of the human race is up for grabs, and it may well depend on the polls indicating that Kamila Harris can beat Donald Trump. If that transpires over the next 45 days, war can be postponed. But, if 1 of 2 things occurs, a Trump win looks to be inevitable or the economy crashes before the proposed election date, war becomes the primary tactic in the overall strategy—and our lives will be bargained-away for a dollar.

What kind of revolution awaits a dollar collapse/ungovernable America? Next time.
