

The Inerrant Political Truths! So Simple, Yet The Masses Get Screwed Every Time In Every Election Anywhere!

By Matthias Chang - Future Fast- Forward

For Malaysians and for others - If the hat fits you, put it on!

Otherwise you are not in my path-finder. I respect your patriotism.

The inerrant Political Truth is so mind boggling that YOU cannot accept the political REALITY that YOU have been brainwashed and so fucked up but still think and believed that you are too clever / smart to be a political arsehole!

The focus of this article is on the USA.

Yes, I want YOU to be angry, to go BESERK with obscenities that Matthias has gone TOO FAR, too AUDACIOUS to label ME an arsehole, accusing ME of having my head between the legs and ECHOED the propaganda served on a silver platter!

Get over your self-importance and conceit and ask,

- Why did you vote for the political party – the Republican Party or the Democratic Party (in USA), the Conservative Party or the Labour Party (in UK), the Barisan Nasional Coalition or one of the Opposition Parties (in Malaysia)?
- In most countries, why are General Elections held every 4-5 years?
- Why is the US Congressional Election held every two years? At that time, one-third of the Senate and every seat in the House of Representatives are up for election?
- Why Senators serve six-year terms? They will not all be up for election at the same time as their terms are staggered. Every two years, during each mid-term and a presidential election year, a different third of the Senate is elected;
- Why is the US President's term of office, only four years? The US Constitution, in Article II, Section 1, Clause 1, states that the President holds office for a term of four years. While initially, there were no term limits, the 22nd Amendment was ratified in 1951, limiting presidents to two four-year terms. Why?
- Do you know the amount of money spent in Elections?
- Have you tabulated who or what entities are the biggest donors?
- Why an Independent candidate has a minuscule chance of being elected for whatever office?
- Can you name each and every member of the Cabinet in your country?
- Are the “Checks and Balance” of those in power a myth or reality?

- Are you a member of a political party, if yes why and if not, Why not?

Having contemplated the above questions, I will now invite you to consider Carl von Clausewitz's famous aphorism - "War is the continuation of politics by other means".

According to the Journal of Strategic Security, Clausewitz argued that war is not an isolated event but rather a tool used to achieve political goals, and understanding this relationship is crucial to understanding war itself.

I just shared with you a Red Alert on the WhatsApp platform this morning that Russia's NSC has sounded the alarm that WWII is inevitable and countries must be prepared for war as the peace process in Ukraine and the US Global Trade Tariffs agenda have collapsed.

For the squeamish, do not read further and go to your wormhole and moralise for all I care. If you are not squeamish, please continue.

War is the continuation of politics by other means. Carl von Clausewitz did not make any distinction of the various types of war such as – world wars, regional war, genocidal wars, colonial wars, racial wars, ideological wars etc!

In essence, war is a solution but not for the squeamish. It has been attributed to the American General Patton that,

"No bastard ever won a war by dying for his country.
He won it by making the other poor dumb bastard die for his country."

Yet, we have dumb arseholes moralising that I used foul language in my articles and should instead use "Queen's English", since I am a Barrister of the Inner Temple. Big Deal! YOU should count yourself very fortunate that there are bastards dying for their country, so that you may have a comfortable life screwing in decadent night-clubs and elsewhere, women lured into the sordid life-style.

I have been to Gaza many times, risked my life and seen the horrors of wars, and if I had a rifle or whatever weapon, I would readily kill the bastards responsible for the massacre of unarmed women and children. So, don't lecture me about morality and peace.

Back to Inerrant Political Truths

Before President Trump starts any wars for whatever reasons, he must first, destroy his enemies within his country. No-Holds-Barred if you have to do so and be merciless!

I have told President Trump and Americans enough times that no perceived foreign adversaries can be defeated in any war, if their internal enemies are not decimated and liquidated. This is pure common sense!

RUSSIA, CHINA AND IRAN ARE NOT YOUR ENEMIES!

The criminal bastards in UK and USA who want Trump dead or rendered ineffective are the enemies within the USA – the Deep State within the Democratic Party and the RINOs (Republicans in name only) within the Republican Party. This is a given!

The enemies are controlled by the Zionist British Empire. Get this inerrant truth into your freaking heads if you want to succeed in achieving the MAGA agenda!

The USA is a great nation, as the people have defeated King George III and the British Empire by waging the “American Revolution”.

But, the word “Revolution” has been made “dirty”, “bastardised”, “abhorred” and “unacceptable” in any spoken or written language.

Get into your thick skull that the American Revolution and Declaration of Independence, even inspired Ho Chi Minh, the great Vietnamese patriot and leader!

Ho Chi Minh was first and foremost a Nationalist and a Patriot.

I quote sources from the Internet – verify if you want to prove Matthias wrong:

Ho Chi Minh's Proclamation of Independence of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam in 1945 began with the same words as the American Declaration of Independence: "All men are created equal; they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights; among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness". This direct borrowing highlights the influence of the American document on Ho Chi Minh's ideology and his vision for a free Vietnam.

Ho Chi Minh deeply understood and identified with the American anti-colonial revolt against British rule. He believed that the American example of self-determination inspired him to fight for Vietnamese independence from French colonial rule.

The American Revolution provided Ho Chi Minh with a moral framework for justifying Vietnamese independence. By framing their struggle as a fight for freedom and self-determination, similar to the American Revolution, he sought to gain international support for the Vietnamese cause.

Ho Chi Minh's early travels and exposure to American culture, including the principles of the Declaration of Independence, likely solidified his admiration for the American model of self-governance and contributed to his decision to emulate the language and ideals of the American Revolution in his own Proclamation. In essence, Ho Chi Minh saw the American Revolution and its Declaration of Independence as a powerful example of how a colonized people could achieve independence and self-determination, and he directly incorporated these ideas into his own struggle for Vietnamese independence.

This is history and does not make Matthias a communist by quoting Ho Chi Minh’s inspiration. Don’t be a moron!

From the History Reader (<https://www.thehistoryreader.com/military-history/ho-chi-minh-thomas-jefferson/>)

Ho Chi Minh and Thomas Jefferson

A frail-looking wisp of a man advanced to the microphone. "All men are created equal," he declared, as all of Hanoi listened. "They are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights; among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness." He paused and then elaborated. "This immortal statement," he explained, "was made in the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America in 1776. In a broader sense, this means: all the peoples on earth are equal from birth, all the peoples have a right to live, to be happy and free."

That was not all. Just as Jefferson's immortal vision of unalienable rights and freedoms was followed by a kind of legal brief that documented at length all the abuses committed by King George III and the English Parliament against their American subjects, Ho Chi Minh similarly outlined the grievances of the Vietnamese against France, their colonial master.

As his listeners strained to hear him, he reminded them that France was still attempting to destroy Vietnamese unity by artificially dividing the nation into three separate political regions, Tonkin, Annam, and Cochin China. France burdened the Vietnamese with unjust taxes; France expropriated the people's land, rice fields, and forests; France ruled by decree and not by law; she built prisons instead of schools, and in Indochina's darkest hour, France abandoned her to the Japanese.

What was most startling was this historical fact and I quote in extenso:

Jefferson, toward the end of his great document, had proclaimed that the Americans were simultaneously DISSOLVING ALL POLITICAL TIES with Great Britain and declaring their independence.

"We ... the representatives of the United States of America do solemnly publish and declare," he wrote, "that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

Ho Chi Minh struggled to recall Jefferson's exact words. "We, the members of the provisional government of the democratic republic of Vietnam proclaim solemnly to the entire world: Viet Nam has the right to be free and independent, and, in fact, has become a free and independent country."

The American Declaration of Independence ends with a pledge taken by all its signers. "And, for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

Ho Chi Minh's version of the final pledge encompassed not just the signers but the whole Vietnamese people. "The entire people of Viet Nam," Ho declared, "are determined to mobilize all their spiritual and physical strength, to sacrifice their lives and property in order to safeguard their independence and liberty."

Days earlier, Ho Chi Minh and his advisers had been labouring to recall as much of Jefferson's language as they could. Ho had memorized the opening lines of the Declaration when he visited the United States as a menial labourer on a tramp steamer before World War I, but his memory had faded.

He wondered if one of the American intelligence officers serving in Vietnam could help. During World War II, James Patti headed the Vietnam mission of the Office of Strategic Services, the OSS, the precursor of the CIA.

During the summer and fall of 1945, Major Patti, along with Brigadier General Philip Gallagher and Captain Farris, observed Ho Chi Minh's Vietminh party. For Patti, Ho Chi Minh was a nationalist, not a "starry-eyed revolutionary or a flaming radical."

"I felt he could be trusted as an ally against the Japanese," Patti recalled. "I saw that his ultimate goal was to attain American support for the cause of a free Viet Nam."

This is how an objective and independent analyst would study history.

The last paragraph reveals the observations of an Intelligence Officer, Major Patti of the OSS, the precursor of the CIA and supported by Brigadier General Philip Gallagher and Captain Farris.

I rest my case!

Susan Dunn (an American professor of literature) reminded us that educated revolutionary leaders in Asia, American history had much to teach.

In the 1920s, Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese revolutionary and republican, had written extensively on American history in his Three Principles of the People. This founder of modern China had studied in depth the two "finest" periods in American history, the American Revolution and the Civil War.

Sun admired the Americans' revolt against their unequal treatment at the hands of the British, their willingness to endure eight years of war, and their creation of an independent state. The Civil War was another "shining" example of the struggle for equality. American history contained important lessons on revolution and democracy for the Chinese, although the Chinese, Sun noted, would eventually have to find their own formula for government.

Trump Must Destroy the US Democratic Party

President must cease wasting time, pissing around and decide once and for all - MAGA or save the US$ - the Toilet Paper Global Reserve Currency! Trump and the Americans cannot have it BOTH WAYS.

Now that Trump controls the ODNI, the DOJ and the White House (the formidable trio of Tulsi Gabbard, Pam Bondi and Karoline Levitt) there can be no excuses for holding back in destroying the Deep State and its hirelings in the US Democratic Party.

Your enemies are willing to kill you. Period!

Therefore, do the following:

- Liquidate by whatever means the leadership of the Democratic Party;
- Nancy Pelosi and Chuck Schumer for starters;
- The people behind the scenes of the Democratic Party;
- Make them an offer they cannot refuse or else – the exposures contained in the red top-secret ring files of their crimes and the minimum of ten years imprisonment and the brutal rape in prison;
- Warnings to the RINOs not to be traitors! The Party must rule for the minimum of 12 years, to clean up the mess and the hollowing out of the USA;
- Start from square one – the US Declaration of Independence and cut all ties with the Zionist British Empire. We can only die once. It's all or nothing;
- When thousands of nuclear bombs and weapons cannot make USA strong, and Trump needs to make idiotic threats, he must sink his head in the toilet bowl and surrender. If so, Trump is useless and a wimp!
- Being a President does not impress anyone who have defeated the British Empire, as Trump has yet to defeat the British Empire;
- Check the list of personalities who are not on the official White House Team but who have prevailed on Trump to make the official appointments. They are not invincible. They also need a network of sycophants and cronies for power!
- Cut off the “legs of the chair or table” on which the Deep State conspires to derail Trump's agenda.
- Either they survive or Trump prevails. No other choice!

If truth be told, a President needs no more than five people to run any country. Trump's enemies within USA are perceived as “powerful” because Trump believes in the Deep State's propaganda. Even the toughest Mafia's hired guns fear the barrel of a gun pointing at their faces. Even Satan fears God's wrath!

The rest, I leave to Trump's imagination and his will to survive. Destroy the enemies within and make a New Map with Russia and China.

No political family alone, can dominate the world!
